

BERKMAN GOES TO ISLAND; VOWED HE NEVER WOULD

He Had Expected That Friends Would Keep Him Out of the Workhouse.

HE RAGES IN HIS CELL.

Bolton Hall Saves "Mary Smith" From Term Behind the Prison Bars.

Alexander Berkman, the Anarchist, went to the Workhouse on the 10 o'clock boat this morning.

An hour before he began the journey from the Jefferson Market Court Prison he declared the police would never get him there; that his friend Emma Goldman would rescue him.

But Emma failed in the rescue work. Since she slipped out of Cooper Union yesterday afternoon when Berkman was being arrested for disorderly conduct, she kept herself in the background, although she was vainly active on the telephone in Berkman's interest. Just before the Workhouse wagon called for Berkman, he was seen in the prison, where he had been since Magistrate Corrigan in the Night Court sentenced him to five days on the island. He was almost foaming with rage.

Vehemently declaring his innocence of the disorder at Cooper Union yesterday afternoon he cried that he was a victim of police persecution, declaring that since his release from a Pennsylvania prison, where he was sent for attempting the life of Henry C. Frick, he has been marked for outrageous treatment.

"I Will Never Go!"

"But let me tell you," yelled the anarchist, "that I will never go to the workhouse. Miss Goldman is out now arranging to get me out of this. Three times arrested since I left Pennsylvania prison! Think of it! That's what police persecution is."

"Why, when that officer got me to the fifth street station the lieutenant said to him: 'You ought to have brought him in on a stretcher.' Nice sort of law and order that."

"There was no such disturbance at Cooper Union as the papers describe. It was all a put up job to arrest me. But I'm not fretting about it. Not a bit. I'll get out. Miss Emma Goldman will see to that."

Berkman also declared that it was an outrage to have arrested Miss Mary Smith, the young woman who lives with Berkman and Emma Goldman at No. 210 East Thirtieth street, from which address is published Berkman's "Red" pamphlet, "Mother Earth."

The Smith girl was arraigned with Berkman before Magistrate Corrigan at 2 o'clock this morning. She was fined $10. The fine was paid by Bolton Hall, the Socialist. She left Berkman promising to hunt up Emma, who had wriggled away from the crush about Berkman when he was arrested.

Promised to "Get Him Out."

"We will get you out, Alex," she promised the Anarchist as she left court.

Neither Miss Goldman nor the Smith girl could be found at the headquarters of "Mother Earth" this morning. His police Havell, Berkman's partner in the publishing business, was found there, stamping about, waving his arms and running his fingers through his bristling hair.

"They're a lot of brutes," shouted Havell, jumping up and down. "Dogs! Hounds! Persecutors! They threatened me, and now they have done it. This is a free country, is it? Yes, it is not, but we'll get him out. Just you watch, Emma and I will get him out, and don't you forget it. Because those brutes and dogs thing him in jail without legal authority to do so. We will show them what we can do."

Havell then lapsed into growing incoherence, and wound up with the statement that no justice had been accorded Berkman in court; that he had been railroaded without an opportunity to bring witnesses. Berkman, frothing in the jail, had declared the same thing; that he was not given a fair trial.

DIETRICHSTEIN DEMURS TO DUELLING COMPLAINT.

But Court Overrules Playwright in Challenge Case and He Is Held for Trial.

(Special to The Evening World.)

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 8.—When Leo Dietrichstein, the playwright, was arraigned in the City Court today on a charge of violating the anti-duelling law, his counsel entered a demurrer to the complaint, alleging that it was insufficient. This was overruled and Dietrichstein was bound over to the Superior Court for trial, his bond being fixed at $500.

Dietrichstein on Aug. 10 it is alleged, sent Major Frederick Schuyler a written challenge to fight a pistol duel after Major Schuyler had beaten him for an alleged insult to Mrs. Sarah L. Sweetser, a friend of the Major's.

RUINED BY RACING LAW, HANGS HIMSELF

Louis Goldberg, of No. 123 Shore road, Swopehead Bay, missed his father, Rudin Goldberg, early today. The father had been melancholy for some time owing to the loss of his business, and the son became alarmed. He searched the house and found his father's body swinging from a rafter in the cellar. The old man had been dead for several hours.

Until this summer Rudin Goldberg had been very prosperous. But his new racing law put him out of business. He had a portable day goods store in a wagon, and sold to trainers, jockeys and hostlers. This year his customers have been few and far between.

A month ago a receiver was appointed to take care of his business, and ever since Goldberg has been despondent.

The Wanamaker Store

A Quite Remarkable Occasion in LAMPS

takes first position in this great September movement tomorrow. The principal announcement concerns a recent purchase of Portable Electric Lights, from one of the most prominent and most artistic manufacturers of these goods. The standards are massive and made of genuine bronze. All are mounted with beautiful mosaic shades in the superb patterns which you have probably seen in our Lamp Store, and in other specialty shops where goods of this high character are kept. This concern has gone out of the lamp business, and we took the pieces they had on hand.

There is one superb lamp of the exact model and pattern previously sold here and elsewhere at $250, that will be priced tomorrow at $90. A $200 lamp will be marked $85, a $175 lamp will be marked $75, and the same proportionate reduction all the way through the collection, down to a handsome $65 lamp at $30. All are fitted for electric lights, and the shades are in 18 to 24-inch sizes, made of hundreds of pieces of beautiful colored glass, in rich mosaic patterns. Other favorable purchases from some of our best manufacturers bring these additional offerings:

- Portable Electric Table Lights, with panel glass shades and bead fringes, at $4.50, $6 and $8, worth $6.50, $9 and $12.
- Portable Electric Table Lights, with metal-covered glass shades, at $12, $15 and $18, worth $18, $22.50 and $27.50.

Superb Showing of Fall Dress Goods

New York women, familiar with the splendid scope of Wanamaker Exhibitions of Dress Fabrics, tell us the present one is more varied and beautiful than ever. Comparison proves that it has no equal in New York for variety and comprehensiveness.

The wide diversity of styles precludes detail. Here are novelties from abroad, our exclusive importations; suitings in the new modes, including the handsome wide-wale diagonal chevrons; smart mannish tweeds; lustrous broadcloths, and soft Lansdownes and Henriettas. The color tones—there's many a new color note this season—are wonderfully lovely. Some fabrics, though striped and plaided, have no sharp lines—they are just a blur of exquisitely harmonized shades. The same unique variety and beauty characterize our assortments of Black Dress Goods—the latter shown under the best North light.

You are cordially invited to this fine showing of the world's best loom products, so admirably displayed in our spacious Dress Goods Store.

The New L. R. Corsets

No matter what the fate of the Directorate gown may be, its influence is seen in the Fall fashions, which pronounce decidedly for long lines and slenderness. The makers of the L. R. Corsets have worked in harmony with the styles decreed by Paris designers; and you can buy long backed corsets of this make, properly modeled to produce required lines, and also an easy, graceful pose—the latter quite as essential to style as slenderness. Many new models, ranging in price from $1 to $6.

Fourth floor, Old Building.

Fall Suits for Women

Scores of new models are filling our floors, and there is a snap and sparkle about them such as have scarcely been seen in recent years.

This particular suit is made of fine lustrous broadcloth. The coat is cut on new lines, falling straight from the shoulders, finished in points; high Robespierre collar, small vest of Persian silk, double-breasted, elaborately trimmed with cording of Ottoman silk, with large revers of the same. The skirt is a new model, draped from a high-fitted corset girde, falling in long, graceful lines and trimmed with cording to correspond with coat. Price, $120.

Scores of other models give comprehensive illustration of all the new style-ideas so far brought out—close-fitting sleeves, smart new collars, the various revers, and many copies and modifications of the Directoire styles, smart waistcoats of chintz or Persian vestings. Skirts in the various train and trotting lengths. The lowest-priced suit we have is cut after a smart new model. Prices, $16.75 and upward.
